Raising Pups at Highland Glenn

Our goal is to produce the historical all-purpose English Shepherd according to the breed standard -- remaining faithful to the past while keeping an eye on the future of the breed through temperament, health, and working traits. While we have great hopes for these puppies as individuals, we also see them as important links to the future of the breed.

A great deal of time is spent researching the history of the English Shepherd breed and the original bloodlines. We’ve put much thought and effort into selecting the best dogs to reach our goals. Chosen for health, temperament, versatility, working ability, adaptability, and pedigree our dogs’ ancestors combine many of the great old lines to create classic examples of the breed. Our dogs’ ancestry can be traced back many generations, so if you’re interested we will show you how to do that fascinating research.

Much goes into the holistic foundational wellness care of our dogs in order to produce the healthiest puppies possible. As Natural Rearing breeders, we provide our dogs with a species-specific raw diet, fresh mountain air, clean well water, and plenty of sunshine. Our dogs are family companions and ranch partners kept at working weight as befits a herding dog. All dogs and puppies are MDR1 normal/normal as determined by either genetic testing or parentage. Results for CEA, PRA-prcd, and DM are listed on our website; copies are available upon request. We do not expose our dogs to harmful radiographs. We follow a vaccine-free protocol with our dogs and use no chemicals in, on, or around them all to improve the overall health of English Shepherds for generations to come.

We take great pride and responsibility in our English Shepherd puppies. They are protected and watched over from long before they are even born. We feel confident our Naturally Reared puppies are healthy and sound, with solid temperaments. Puppies are weaned onto a raw food diet and leave our home without the use of chemical drugs (i.e. dewormer) or having been vaccinated. Puppies come with a Health Warranty as being free of communicable disease at the time they leave.

Litters are raised using Puppy Culture and a few techniques from Avidog for a powerful puppy-raising program. Other than daily chores, the puppies are our main focus. Spending this time with each puppy pays huge rewards for their future minds and bodies.

Just some of the things our puppy enrichment program includes are:

- Imprint Handling – Gentle stressors that have a positive effect on the developing brain and immune system.
- Early Scent Introduction – Careful introduction to stimulate the areas of the brain primed for development spurt.
- Socialization: Rules of 7- By 7 weeks of age our puppies have played with far more than seven different ‘toys’, been to different areas on the ranch, touched different surfaces, etc. New items are introduced in the nursery daily.
- “The New Knowledge of Dog Behavior” – By Clarence Pfaffenberger, to stimulate the senses and get a happy, confident, curious puppy.
- Sound Habituation – From the time their ears begin to open they hear common household sounds, music, children, animals, etc., etc., etc.
- Puppy Adventure Box – A fun way to build confidence and learn problem-solving skills!
- Pre-Installed Whistle Recall – Starting at weaning and throughout the time they are with us, at every meal the puppies hear five pips on an Acme gundog whistle before we set down their food. This means our puppies go to their new homes with a well-trained, enthusiastic whistle recall. We also give you an Acme whistle to keep it up. (If you prefer to use another pitch, the pups transfer with no problem.)
- The Barrier Challenge – This starts at 4 weeks and is repeated daily with each puppy until they have no problem navigating the barrier. The puppy must figure out a way around the barrier to reach food. This exercise enhances problem-solving and intelligence as well as developing the capacity to think when frustrated.
- Training – We start basic commands, beginning crate, pad/potty box training, house manners, and beginning loose-leash walking all using positive reinforcement.
- Early House Training – As soon as the puppies start toddling around, a potty area with pads is added to the whelping box; and then a tray with paper pellets is added; finally, taken out at key times. This greatly speeds up housetraining for their new keepers.
- Outdoor Time - From the age of about 3 weeks, the puppies spend time outdoors daily (depending on the weather). A Play Yard gives them more space for play equipment, adds to the socialization experiences, and also lots of room to chase and run. “Woodland Walks” with us also provide invaluable learning experiences. They are acquainted with the chickens, goats, and sheep, while they accompany us on chores.

- Automatic Sits – An automatic sit is when a dog guesses, without a word or hand signal, like a “sit-to-say-please”. When the pup wants something, they ask for it by sitting instead of jumping up. The default sit is really about developing the concept of self-control in a very young puppy and provides the puppy with a way to communicate “I would like that” in a socially acceptable way.
- Socialization: They take car rides to the mail box and into town, getting to meet new people and dogs on these trips. They are socialized with all of our dogs and visitors.
- Body Handling: Sounds easy, unless you've ever tried to check the teeth or trim nails on a puppy that wasn't handled regularly.
- The Puppy Party - Held around the age of 6-8 weeks, this provides a big dose of socialization with new people and lots of training.

All of our puppies go home with foundational puppy training completed.

Because we start our puppies with science-based positive reinforcement protocols, we are able to begin training our puppies as soon as they can see and hear.

Puppies learn that training is fun and rewarding, and that there is nothing more enjoyable than interacting and communicating with people.

Our puppies go home at 10-12 weeks old knowing:

- Automatic Sit
- Pre-installed Recall
- Walk on loose leash
- Beginning manners (such as sitting to come out of their playpen, sitting for attention)
- Confidence over a variety of surfaces and obstacles

Because these are young puppies, these skills are taught without distractions.

It is important to remember that you are getting a puppy - a baby dog - so while we provide the best foundation training possible, you are still getting a puppy and a puppy can never be as fully trained and reliable as a mature adult dog. A trained puppy is not the same as a trained adult.

Despite the amount of work we do with our puppies, these babies still need consistency and reinforcement to maintain their early training. You will need to continue working on these skills in environments with increasing distractions.

Not all families have the experience to maintain training, and it should be expected that some families will need to consult a professional to learn to work with their puppy. We highly recommend getting started with the BAXTER & Bella online training school.

Puppies ready to go to their new homes have received the following:

- ✓ Raised in the heart of our home
- ✓ Imprint Handling
- ✓ Puppy Culture enrichment program shown to increase their resilience to stress and enhance emotional stability. - NOTE: Many breeders say they use Puppy Culture but in reality they either barely follow the program or just cobble something together. To ensure a breeder is truly raising Puppy Culture puppies, always request videos of the process as proof.
- ✓ In-home socialization with other dogs, chickens, sheep, and goats
- ✓ Foundational puppy training started (Clicker/ positive reinforcement training)
- ✓ Handling for grooming and veterinary care
- ✓ Crate training started
- ✓ House training started

Regardless of training, puppies should be expected to cry, bark, and have accidents in the house, often at very inconvenient times and places. They should also be expected to have the potential to engage in rowdy or potentially destructive behaviors when not supervised!

Choosing Your Puppy

Temperament assessment on the puppies is ongoing throughout their development- how they interact with littermates, mommy and other dogs, human adults and children, sounds, how they react to novel situations, and independence versus dependence- structure is evaluated at the appropriate time and herding interest is assessed. Through this combined information we know what each puppy is capable of and where they are likely to thrive. Trust our process!

- As the puppies grow, we email “Pupdates” with photos & news on their development. Short video clips and photos are posted on our private Facebook group.
- The puppy matching process starts near 8 weeks of age after structure evaluations are finished.
- We make every effort to match a puppy to your specific needs and preferences. We cannot guarantee there will be a puppy to match your family
- Our puppy keepers have experienced great success in choosing their puppy through our photos and puppy descriptions or online video conferencing.
